

Camping

Have you ever spent the night in a tent or cabin listening to the frogs croak? Have you ever wakened to the sound of a million birds singing? (Well, it seems like a million birds, anyhow.) Camping is a great Wolf Cub adventure, especially if you live in a city and don't have many chances to get close to nature. Here are a few of the things you can do at camp.

1. Practise your outdoor skills. Ask a sixer or one of your leaders to show you how to put up a tent. Learn how to work as a team to set up your camp. Practise living comfortably in the small space of a tent.

This is one thing I learned in setting up a camp site:

2. Play wide games. Instead of the Cub hall, you can use the whole of your camp area for games.

The wide game I played is called:

I played it at _____

(place and when)

This is how to play it:

3. Try stalking - walking through the woods without making a sound. You have to watch every step you make. Can you creep up on your leaders without them hearing you? It's not easy but it's fun.

4. Look at the stars. Away from the smog and lights of the city, the stars are amazingly bright. If you watch carefully, you may even see an orbiting satellite.

These are the constellations, planets or other things I saw:

5. Listen to the sounds of nature: frogs, birds, wind in the long grass, rain on the tent roof. We think of nature as being peaceful, but sometimes it's very noisy!

The sounds I heard were:

I heard a mystery sound and I think what made it looked like this:

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____
