

Other Musical Instruments

There is almost no limit to the different musical instruments you can make. Here are some more ideas. Check those that you try.

- With their bowls back-to-back, hold two dessert spoons loosely between the fingers of one hand. Hold your other hand over your knee and rattle the spoons between your hand and knee.
- Make a cigar-box banjo by stretching different size elastic bands over the open side of a small wooden box.
- Make a drum by stretching a piece of rubber or leather tightly over a large tin can.
- Check your school or community library for books on making simple instruments.

After you have made an instrument or two, you and your friends can play along with the songs on the radio, a record, or a tape, and make up a small band. When you think that you sound pretty good, take your instruments to Cubs and play for the pack.
