

Why Does Kim Work with the Pack?

Kim's work is vital to the pack. Kim helps the Cubs, helps the leaders, and helps himself (or herself) in certain parts of the Scouting program.

As Kim, you will work with other pack leaders as part of a team to plan and carry out programs that are interesting and helpful to the Cubs.

Because you're younger than others leaders, and closer to Cub age, you're more likely to know what Cubs want to do. When you ask Cubs what they like, and listen to what they say, they'll know that you're interested and want to help. When you share these ideas with other leaders, you become an important member of the leadership team.

You'll also be an important role model for Cubs. What does this mean? When Cubs watch you and listen to you, they'll be encouraged to do those things that are important parts of their program. They'll also be able to see themselves in you, when they move on to Scouts.

But there's more. While you're doing all these, you may be fulfilling some Scout program badge requirements. (See pages 34-37 for Scout badge information.)

Do you have some ideas of what Cubs like to do or don't like to do? Write them down here as you notice them. Then you can discuss them later with the other leaders.
